Donna Faulk

"In small communities, leadership is evaluated by folks who feel they are kept informed about what is going on in the village or city, and that they are listened to regarding their concerns and wants."

Mayor Densmore characterized this willingness to go the extra step in ensuring that all residents' concerns are acknowledged, and he believes that transparency makes for a well-informed happier community.

I have seen him listen to all, but make just decisions for equity for all. That is leadership, and this has helped make Golf Manor a desirable, welcoming place to live."
